said, to be branded, and the product of the farmer relieved of competition with them. Victor E. Piolet, of Pennsylvania, an old farmer, and a member of the legislative committee of the National Grange, said that his associates came to Congress to demand a reversal of the whole course of legislation that had so seriously affected the interests of the farmers. They wanted to be protected everywhere, and especially against the competition of adulterated substitutes for their products. This closed the hearing on behalf of the advocates of the passing of the bill, they having occupied a few minutes over an hour in presenting their views. Mr. George H. Webster, a member of the firm of Armour & Co., opened the case for the opponents of the bill with a brief statement. Mr. Webster asserted that compound lard is not an adulterant, but an economic and meritorious mingling of lard with other pure substances. The ingredients are prime steam lard, cotton-seed oil and beef stearine. The business is as honorable as any in the land, and entitled to the same protection as is accorded to any other. Armour & Co., make both pure and compound lard. The latter is put on the market branded by its proper name, thus meeting the original objection to its sale. Mr. Webster said there was not enough pure lard made in the United States to meet the demand, and the compound is made to fill the want. The legislation under consideration is based business jealousy and selfish rivalry; it is worse than useless, and the government does not need the revenue to arise from it. The people do not ask for this legislation, and Mr. Webster predicted that if it were enacted into a law it would operate as has done the oleomargarine law. The manufacture of the article has in-creased, while the price of butter was never so low. If legislation of this character is to be passed. Mr. Webster said that Senator Faulkner's bill, introduced in the Senate, providing for the organization of a purefood division in the Agricultural Department, with power to make national inspection of food products and of cattle, was a satisfactory measure. That inspection Armour & Co. have never opposed.

Mr. Webster exhibited samples of the brands and labels placed upon their compound, which they have used ever since the agitation of the question of two years ago. In conclusion, Mr. Webster read from the report of the hearing in 1888 a statement by Mr. Kimball, that if he were satisfied that the manufacturers of compound lard would brand facturers of compound lard would brand roduct properly he would take the first train for home; that the advocates of the bill desired only to secure that; they

Henry C. Butcher, of Philadelphia, representing the Southern Cotton-seed Oil Company, read a statement of the reasons why his corporation opposed the passage of the bill. The first was that the effect of the bill would be to kill the manufacture of compound lard. It is evidently not the intention or desire, he said, to gain revenues. Unless it can be shown that comsubstances, injurious to public health, there is no reason to place it under govern-ment control. As a matter of fact, Mr. Butcher asserted, compound lard is less likely to be tainted by animal disease than pure lard. Legislation of this character he denounced as dangerous in its tendency, resulting in the building up of one industry at the expense of another. It is a violation of the principles of republican government to legislate thus against any industry. If this bill passed it will destroy the demand for cotton-seed oil, placing a double burden upon the people of all the section in which that is produced. Cotton-seed oil has established itself as a pure and wholesome food ingredient. The prepara-tion of this oil, which is the business of the corporation represented by Mr. Butcher, he said, was comparatively a new one, and it was certainly not the province of Congress to put a check on its development, much less to destroy it. The legislation proposed by the bill in question, the speaker said, was unconstitutional—an effort to do by indirection what Congress is not permitted to do directly. The committee at this point adjourned until next Wednesday. The bill reported favorably to-day by Senator Sherman from the committee on foreign relations, provides for an inspection of meats for exportation, and prohibits the importation of adulterated articles of food or drink. Pork or bacon may be exported without inspection, when it has been packed for more than sixty days. The importation of cattle, sheep and swine which are diseased, or have been exposed to infection is prohibited; also any adulterated or unwholesome food or liquors mixed with an ingredient deleterious to health.

TOPICS OF WOMAN-SUFFRAGISTS.

Political Alliances, Bosses and Corruption, Sex and Other Subjects Discussed.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 .- There are daily in attendance upon the session of the National Woman's Suffrage Association quite a number of Indiana people. At the meeting to-day Hon. Wm. Dudley Foulke, of Richmond, was present, and was introduced to the convention. He made a few interesting remarks, in which he said that in his his opinion the time had not yet come when it was advisable for them, as an organization, to cast their influence with any of the ordinary political questions, but should insist solely upon the main point at issue. The topic under discussion was "The attitude of this association toward political parties." Other addresses were made by Mrs. Alice M. Pickler, of South Dakota; Mrs. Fray, of Toledo, O.; Rev. Olympia Brown, of Wisconsin; Mrs. Shea, of Kentucky; Mrs. Root, of Michigan. The general sentiment was that the association should urge its rightful demands upon all political parties, but should enter into alliances with

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 19.—A sensation was created at McKeesport, Pa., to-day, by the arrest of Mrs. Giles Collins and daughter for shop-lifting. Mrs. Collins is the wife of a leading politician of McKeesport, and is well known. The two women were detected in the act of stealing several articles in a dry-goods store, and were at once put under arrest. A search of their home disclosed at least $5,000 worth of goods, taken from various McKeesport stores.

Back-Pension Payment of Over $13,000 to to an Insane Ex-Soldier.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Feb. 19 .- The Express says: Charles Flaherty has given bond in the sum of $28,000, as guardian of his father. Owen Flaherty, who was recently allowed a pension of $13,079.07. Owen Flaherty is insane, and his son has been his guardian for many years. The recent granting of a pension required a bond in a sum equal to double the amount of property involved, hence the additional bond as gnardian. The following shows the amount of the pension granted and the rate per month for intervening periods:

From June 10, 1865, to June 6, 1866......$8.00 From the latter date to June 4, 1872...... 15.00 From the latter date to Aug. 24, 1876..... 18.00 From the latter date to June 17, 1878.... 50.00 From the latter date to the present time ... 72.00 Average pension per month...... 32.60

Mr. Flaherty will receive $72 per month as long as he shall live. He is now in the poor-house for the purpose of preventing him from being at large—not on account of poverty. He thinks that he owns the poorfarm and that he is manager of the institution. He is an indefatigable worker, and is peaceable so long as his associates studiously avoid giving him real or imagined cause to be angry. When angry he is very violent. He is about sixty years of age and has several children in this county. His guardian, who is his son, is an engineer on the Vandalia. Owen Flaherty culisted in Company A, One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth Illinois Infantry, at discharged, and has been so ever since.

GARFIELD'S REMAINS.

Why They Were Removed from Their Original Resting-Place and Hid in an Obscure Tomb.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 19.-The Garfield monument is completed, and preparations are now making for the dedication, early in the spring. In view of the approaching transfer of the remains of President Garfield it is now possible to narrate an astounding story respecting the disposition which has been made of the body of the late President for the last four years. When Garfield's remains were deposited in the vault in the Lake View Cemetery it was announced they would be kept there until the time came to make permanent disposition of them. After the funeral the casket was placed in a sarcophagus within the vault, which could be viewed the path outside through an iron grating. The suspicion which the robbery of the grave of Mr. Stewart had occasioned respecting the existence of an organized band of graverobbers induced the government to take special measures to prevent any such vio-lation of this tomb, and a guard of soldiers was maintained there five years. Secretary Endicott removed the guard, which caused the personal friends of the Garfield family, in Cleveland, serious apprehension, for some intimation had been received from detectives that the possibility of despoiling the temporary vault had been suggested to certain Chicago ghouls.

It was proposed, by friends of the Garfield family, to remove, in the dead of night, the remains of Garfield from the sarcophagus, and to place them in some secure spot, the identity of which would be known only to the members of Garfield's family and to those who undertook to carry out the plan. Four men, three of them prominent in business affairs, and one known professionally in Cleveland, decided upon an obscure vault remote part of the cemetery, where fev visitors go. Those from whom the vault was procured had not the slightest idea of the purpose for which it was to be used. One night these four men went to the tomb and removed the lid of the sarcopagus-a very difficult task on account of its great weight. They then undertook to remove the casket, composed of heavy oak and metal. It was with the greatest toil that they were able to remove it from its place, and one of them so severely strained himself that he never fully recovered from the effects of the night's work. The sarcophagus was then closed and resealed, the tomb-door locked, and the casket removed to the obscure burial-place, it taking the greater part of the night to do it. All evidences of any recent treatment of this tomb were then carefully removed, and the four men returned to Cleveland and reported to the members of the Garfield family what they

From that time until this it is understood the remains have lain in this remote nook of the cemetery, while thousands of persons in the last four years have visited the temporary tomb of Garfield and, as they supposed, paid silent homage to the memory of the President, whose remains they supposed to be reposing within the sarcophagus. The friends of the family believe that this action was fully justified by the circumstances.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

French Engineers Say It Is a Bad Dream on Which Much Money Has Been Wasted. CHICAGO, Feb. 19 .- Four bright-looking men, with bronzed faces, registered at the Palmer last night. After the leader had written the names he placed a heavy bundle on the counter. He would not allow the clerks to handle the package, and asked that he might place it in the safe himself. The exterior of the bundle had the appearance of nothing valuable, yet its contents are eagerly sought for by all France. The arrivals were Messrs. Germain, Cousin, Lagout and Duchanet, celebrated French engineers, and it virtually rests upon their decision whether or not the Panama canal will ever be finished by French enterprise. Shortly after the De Lesseps company dissolved Messrs. Germain, Cousin, Lagout and Duchanet were sent to the isthmus for the purpose of thoroughly inspecting the line, and to present their opinion as to whether it would be practicable to raise more money and dig the ditch or give it up. The engineers have gone over every foot of the proposed route, and in a few weeks their report will be presented to M. Brunet, liquidateur of the company. They came here direct from San Francisco, and remained but a few hours. They will sail from New York Saturday. The bundle that the engineers were so careful of contained the notes of their report.

M. Germain, who is called the president of the quartet, was reserved about talking of his report.

"How can I tell one about our opinion." he explained, "when it interests all France. If I stated that we were to make a favorable report speculators would have all the shares of canal stock before we reached "If your report is unfavorable will another syndicate of financiers take up the

that the outlook is rather dubious."

M. Germain shrugged his shoulders and walked away. The younger members of the quartet were not so politic as their president. M. Lagout said: "The Panama canal is but a bad dream. RUSSIA'S DEMAND ON BULGARIA.

Three Million Roubles Asked for Maintaining Troops During 1878 and 1879. Sofia, Feb. 19.—Russia has demanded of the government of Bulgaria the payment of 3,000,000 roubles, arrears of money due on account of the Russian occupation during 1878 and 1879. The demand is in part related to the consolidation under one government of Bulgaria and Eastern Roumelia. By the treaty of Berlin, July, 1878, it was provided that Russia, whose armies had just conquered for these countries their freedom from the Ottoman dominion, should maintain a military occupation of Eastern Roumelia for nine months. The object of this was to guarantee the tranquillity of the country, it being apprehended that between the Turkish authorities left in partial control and the long-op-pressed population, inspired by their par-tial freedom, there would be murderous conflicts if the conquering armies were withdrawn before the respective elements had accustomed themselves to their new relations. As is usual in such cases, the expense of maintaining the troops was to be assessed upon the province. Russia has never pressed this debt, but demands the arrears now, apparently under a sense of irritation.

Revengeful Murder in Kentucky. MAYSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 19 .- A brutal mur der was committed at Brashears' Station. four miles below here, yesterday. Thomas A. Brashears, owner of a tobacco warehouse of that place, was assaulted and beaten to death and the body beaten after death by Gus Sullivan and his son, Samuel C., aged nineteen. They used a shovel and a club. They are neighbors and had a grudge against Brashears, because he had been instrumental in building a turnpike which took a portion of their property. They entered the warehouse when he was alone and began a quarrel. When others came in Brashears was dead and the Sullivans were still beating his lifeless body. The Sullivans surrendered to the sheriff and claim that Brashears was the aggressor.
